ISO 14001:2015

Environmental Management Systems

What is ISO 14001?

ISO 14001:2015 is an international standard developed by the International Organization for Standardization (ISO) for Environmental Management Systems.

Revised in the year 2015 (hence the designation ISO 14001:2015), the intent of this ISO standard is to provide organizations with the elements of an effective Environmental Management System (EMS) that can be integrated with other management requirements and help organizations achieve EMS and economic objectives.

ISO 14001 Principles

- Plan: establish the objectives and processes necessary to deliver results in accordance with the organization's Environmental Management System (EMS) policy.
- Do: implement the processes.
- Check: monitor and measure processes against EMS policy, objectives, compliance obligations, and report the results.
- Act: take actions to continually improve EMS performance.

Benefits of ISO 14001

- Increased emphasis on Environmental Management, including resource conservation and the prevention of pollution;
- Improved identification and control of environmental aspects, and their related environmental impacts;
- Improved environmental performance through emphasis on continual improvement;
- With ISO 14001 certification, demonstrated compliance with legal and other environmental compliance obligations.
